Describe your business:

My business focuses on vintage Japanese motorcycle restoration. A vintage motorcycle is one that is at least 25 years old.

What's your professional background? As an engineer, I worked in the plastic industry, and I did design work creating large plastic extrusion equipment. I have a professional background in mechanical design, a skill which I now apply to motorcycle restoration. It's worth noting that I worked for Yamaha for 15 years.

Your business philosophy: I strive to demonstrate dedication to my clients and meet their expectations.

Biggest challenge: The hardest thing is searching for and locating the original factory parts for the motorcycles

Proudest moment as a businessperson: I was very proud when I got an invitation from Yamaha Motor Corp. to showcase one of my motorcycles at the American International Motorcycle Exposition. That's one of the largest and most prestigious motorcycle expos in Florida.

Business advice: Focus on the concerns of your clients.

What's next? What are your future plans for your business? In the near future, I would like to open and operate a motorcycle museum in this area.
